

CYSTIC FIBROSIS

65 Roses Day

Make your own 65 Roses Day Facts Table Talker

1.

Print out the template, cut around the edges and fold the paper along the dotted lines.

2.

Use glue or tape to adhere the tab to the inside edge of the paper.

Proudly supported by

CYSTIC FIBROSIS

65 Roses Day

WHY 65 ROSES?

The 65 Roses story dates back to 1965 when an observant 4-year-old, hearing the name of his disease for the first time, pronounced cystic fibrosis as "65 Roses."

Today, 65 Roses is a term often used by young children with cystic fibrosis to pronounce the name of their disease.

CYSTIC FIBROSIS IN WA

There are over 3,000 people with cystic fibrosis in Australia and nearly 400 of those live in WA. There is presently no known cure for cystic fibrosis, but researchers are working very hard to find one.

Proudly supported by

How Cystic Fibrosis WA help those affected by cystic fibrosis

SUPPORT

We provide a comprehensive range of services, in home support, and resources for people affected by cystic fibrosis in Western Australia.

More than 3,900+

times our services were accessed last year alone

RESEARCH

In association with the Australian Cystic Fibrosis Research Trust, we help fund research to advance our understanding and treatment of cystic fibrosis and to provide better support for those with cystic fibrosis and their families.

Proudly supported by

CYSTIC FIBROSIS

65 Roses Day

YOUR SUPPORT

All funds raised across 65 Roses Day will go towards vital research initiatives which extend and improve the quality of life of people with cystic fibrosis, as well as support services.

OUR PARTNER

Thanks to Wafex, our principal partner, for supporting the work we do for over 15 years. 65 Roses Day would not be a success without their support.

Find out more or donate today, visit cfwa.org.au

Proudly supported by

GLUE OR STICK